Description of the course

This course is one of the core fields for the curriculum. As any discipline, social anthropology has been developing in connecting with the history and social circumstances. The course seeks to explore the appearance and development of the essential anthropological currents and concepts. We will make an attempt to discuss the evolution of anthropological theories also in terms of national traditions: English, American, French, German and Soviet.

At the end of the course the students will learn precursors of anthropology; evolutionism in all its guises; diffusions and culture area theories, functionalism and structural-functionalism; action-centered theories; processual and Marxist perspectives. This course aims to develop of critical and writing skills, as well as improve reading capacities.

Key readings

- Alan Barnard, “History and theory in anthropology», Cambridge University Press 2000,
- Salzmann Philip Carl, “Understanding culture: an introduction to anthropological theory”, Waveland Press.
- Paul Erickson and Liam Murphy, “A History of anthropological theory”

Assignments:

Oral Participation:	30 %
6 Short Papers (1-2 pp):	30 %
Mid term exam:	15 %
Final project and presentation (5-6 pp):	25 %

Attendance

Attendance is required. Attendance will be checked in the beginning of each class period. If you are late you will not be allowed to the class. Or, you can be allowed to the class but will get an absence in the attendance list.

If you got sick, you have to notify an instructor or the office manager in advance, and later submit an official document (spravka) from a physician, especially if you are scheduled to make a class presentation. Four unexcused absences will result in “X” for the whole course. Participation will be graded based on active participation, which 1) demonstrates awareness of the subject;2)shows knowledge of the reading;3) shows ability to criticize the topic.

Moodle system: Most of readings, texts and presentation can be found on the e-course. Students are expected to participate in the forums as well as uploading different texts. This participation will be also one of the evaluation criteria's.

6 Short papers

Short reflection paper will be mainly based on reading critique of one of the articles, which will be provided in advance. Student has to discuss author's arguments. Samples will be posted on the Moodle course site (click political anthropology, enrollment key: ANTH 376). Papers should be given in a printed form.

Deadlines

Papers must be submitted to the office manager of Anthropology Department before the deadline (moodle system can be also used). The time you submit will be recorded by the office manager and confirmed by your signature. Papers and assignments submitted beyond the deadline will not be accepted or graded. Deadlines can only be extended upon prior permission request and for medical reasons. Only those late papers with valid or legitimate excuse will be accepted but penalized that will affect the final grade for the assignment. Late papers will be penalized one letter grade (i. E. A- to B+).

Mid Term exam

Exam will be in-class writing and will be based on 4 questions based on class topics, student should select two of them.

Final paper and presentation

Each student is expected to choose one concept based on class readings (e.g.: cultural evolutionism, relativism, cultural area, practice etc.) and write a paper (5-6 papers, 12, double-spaced) which will be presented in class. It should be an analysis with evaluation, critique of the selected concept, outlining its genesis, meaning, advantages, limitations and your understanding of its importance for contemporary anthropology. Presentation may be limited to: 1) an overview of your analysis, 2) a reflection on the impact of the term on your understanding.

Grading scale:
